

DR. DENNIS KING

Dr. Dennis King is chair of the Music Department and associate professor of music at Stritch, where he teaches music theory and conducts musical theater productions. Previously, he was the music supervisor for the Milwaukee Public Schools and fine arts administrator for the West Allis - West Milwaukee School District. King has served on the School of Music faculty at the University of Wisconsin - Madison, and he has also taught on the music faculties of Beloit College and the University of Wisconsin - Whitewater.

King received M.M. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Wisconsin - Madison, and school administration credentials from Stritch. As a classical saxophonist, King has studied under Dr. Frederick Hemke of Northwestern University, Robert Black of Chicago and William Schwab of the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He has performed as a soloist with the Beloit/Janesville Symphony, the Civic Orchestra of Chicago and University of Wisconsin Symphony.

King is a member Phi Delta Kappa and has served as a director for Young Audiences of Wisconsin, the Milwaukee Jazz Experience, the Milwaukee Civic Music Association, and as a chair for the Wisconsin School Music Association and the MacDowell Club of Milwaukee. He has been a music program evaluator for the North Central Association and the Wisconsin School Evaluation Consortium.