

Amelia Spierer is a member of the voice faculty, vocal ensemble coach and ear training instructor at Cardinal Stritch University. She completed her master of music degree at Rutgers University in 2004 and spent a year studying at the Hochschule für Musik in Cologne, Germany. Her opera credits include Cherubino in Mozart's Le Nozze de Figaro, Mrs. Page in Nicolai's Merry Wives of Windsor, and Annina in Verdi's La Traviata. In 2002, Spierer was awarded an honorable mention in the American Bach Society's annual vocal competition. She sings with the Cathedral Choir at the Cathedral of St. John the Evangelist, as well as with the Collegium Ladyes, a local early music women's group.
